

PinkPrincess.com Predicts Flower Girl Dresses in Bold Black and Flashy Fuchsia

PinkPrincess.com offers flower girl dresses in stunning black or bold black with bright accents. White satin flower girl dresses and First Communion dresses will still delight little princesses at PinkPrincess.com. Owner Yolanda Huang says, however, that the touches of black and the vibrant colors are in response to the latest trend in wedding fashion.

Los Angeles, CA (PRWEB) April 28, 2009 -- PinkPrincess.com, an online retailer, offering flower girl dresses in hundreds of styles, hopes to infuse weddings with elegance and color in black and fuchsia designs. This year's weddings are expected to be visions of more than just white. Yolanda Huang, owner of PinkPrincess.com, points out, however, that weddings always counted on a touch of black.

PinkPrincess.com has brought out the best of 'black' in their boys tuxedos for little princes since coming on the scene in 2004. The current fashion emphasis on 'black' is based on the concept of contrast. They have the pleated shirts, jackets, ties, and cummerbunds which provide that classic look. Fashion account representative, Jennie Ellingson, voiced her excitement about PinkPrincess.com's line for little gentlemen.

"The flower girl dresses will make any little girl feel like a princess, but my favorite looks are the stylish formal suits for boys. They've got it all, from tiny tuxedos to adorable short sets."

PinkPrincess.com has brought out flower girl dresses in black taffeta and black satin to meet the current demand. They also offer exciting black and white polka dot and flocked patterns. A black flower girl dress - a flocked organza over taffeta - is a customer favorite.

They show bold and bright design in a black A-line skirt with a fuchsia sash. This black beauty is also available with a terrific turquoise sash. A fuchsia dress with a satin bodice is a hot number. PinkPrincess.com gives customers the extra option to 'Create A Dress.'

The retailer provides a selection of dress styles. The customer can choose a dress color and a sash to complete the look. Customers can be trendy and create a pink dress with a black sash or a black dress with a fuchsia sash. Fans of pretty pastels or pure white can also design with 'Create A Dress.'

PinkPrincess.com overflows with white satin and embroidered organza. A First Communion dress with a satin beaded bodice counts among its latest arrivals. Christening gowns can feature organza overlay and intricate detail.

The company has a wide selection of pastel shades available in its line of Easter dresses. Yet owner Yolanda Huang has also noticed a changing trend in Easter dresses.

"This year's favorite colors seemed to be apple green, and why not? Green is life and it often resembles nature, growth, renewal, health, and environment. The color goes well with gray, yellow, black, purple, lavender, and brown for nice contrast."

Despite the ever changing fashion scene, PinkPrincess.com continues to provide an enchanting experience.

Customer Genavie explains, "The flower girls looked and felt like little princesses in these dresses."
